Dear Richard:

ART IN CINEMA has arrived and, without having read it too critically yet (I have just seen our library copy), I want to congratulate you for a handsome and useful publication. I really think you have done a beautiful job on it, and hope that it gets the attention it deserves. I'll see if I can't get a review of it into THEATRE ARTS.

In the meantime, though, would you send me a copy for myself. It's a book I'll want to keep. And thanks, too, for the kind words in the introduction. Very pleasant overstatement of the case.

I understand from Lew Jacobs that Circle and the Museum have just issued a handsome little book touching upon material relevant to the Museum's "Art in Cinema" film series.

I would like very much to keep readers of Sight and Sound, the English quarterly publication of the British Film Institute, for which I am Hollywood correspondent, advised of new books of this character.

It would be very helpful if you could make a copy available to me for this purpose.

Mr. John McCarten
THE NEW YORKER MAGAZINE

Dear Mr. McCarten:

With the help of the Museum of Modern Art in New York and individual artists all over the country, last year this museum held a ten-program showing of "avant-garde" and experimental films, most of them seen in the West for the first time, some seen on a public screen for the first time. The series was a tremendous success and was followed by two more last spring, as happily received.

Now, we seem to have sort of an avalanche on our hands, both of supply and demand for films of a non-commercial and experimental nature! In conjunction with these programs, Frank Stauffacher, one of the two young men who brought about the series, has edited the book ART IN CINEMA, one of the first actual records of the film as an art medium. (The cover design for the book was done with silk-screen by Bezalel Schatz, who with Henry Miller has just brought out the $100 limited edition tome "Into the Night Life".)

ART IN CINEMA accompanies this letter, to you. We would be indeed grateful if you would give it your attention; a critical notice in the New Yorker would of course greatly enhance its its distribution possibilities as well as spreading the word of our cinematic activities here to potential valuable new sources of film material.

(We ar planning another series of showings for this coming Fall and are scouring this and foreign countries in every way open to us for further material.)

I enclose to you announcements of our previous showings, for your interest.

Many thanks for anything you can do for us in the columns of the New Yorker.

Sincerely,

Martha B. Bullitt

BOOK REVIEW DEPARTMENT
New York Times
229 West 43rd Street
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Adams:

A book, ART IN CINEMA, proceeds to you along with this letter, for the reason that your name and the thoughtful literary excursions that accompany it each week in the Times Book Review are most pleasantly familiar to me. Although ART IN CINEMA very likely would not fall in your department for review, perhaps you will be interested to look it through, and if you could place it in appropriate hands for a review we would be very grateful.

As a brief backlogue: In the Fall of last year this Museum gave a ten night series of showings of "avant-garde" and "experimental" films aimed at establishing the potentialities of film as a creative medium. With the help of the Museum of Modern Art and individual artists all over the country we got together quite an exciting series of films, most of which had never before been seen in the West, some never shown on a large public screen. The venture was pure anti-Hollywood, an experiment, and as it turned out, a success.

Two additional series followed this last Spring, one here, one at the University of California with equal success (even financially)! so that another is projected for this coming Fall. We seem to have dislodged an avalanche of film-makers, film-goers and enthusiasm for a non-commercial product.

ART IN CINEMA is the record of this experiment, compiled and edited by Frank Stauffacher, one of the two young men responsible for the showings. I commend it to your good offices with thanks for anything you can do for it in the Book Review Columns.

With an additional word of thanks for the pleasure I, personally have had over innumerable weeks from your excellent pieces in the Book Review.

Sincerely,

Martha B. Bullitt

Dear Mr. Crandall:

Jack Wallace at the San Francisco Chronicle has kindly suggested that I contact you. A book, ART IN CINEMA, proceeds to you along with this letter, and although it may not fall exactly in with your department, Mr. Wallace suggested that you might be interested to look it over, and perhaps could place it in appropriate hands for a review in the Book Section.

If you would bee good enough to do so we'd certainly appreciate it. At any rate, here is a brief backlogue on the book: In the Fall of last year this Museum gave a ten night series of showings of "avant-garde" and "experimental" films aimed at establishing the potentialities of film as a creative medium. With the help of the Museum of Modern Art and individual artists all over the country we got together quite an exciting series of films, most of which had never been seen in the West, some not shown before on a large public screen. The venture was pure anti-Hollywood, an experiment, and as it turned out, a success.

Two additional series followed this las Spring, one here, one at the University of California with equal success (even financially!) so that another is being worked up for the coming Fall. We seem to have dislodged an avalanche of film-makers, film-goers and enthusiasm for a non-commercial product.

ART IN CINEMA is the record of this experiment, compiled and edited by Frank Stauffacher, one of the two young men responsible for the showings. I commend it to your good offices with thanks for anything you can do for it in the Book Review columns.

THE WORLD IN BOOKS

NO ONE KNOWS ALL about what is being published in America today. The Copyright Office, true, has a pretty complete picture of the ten thousand new books every year, but this is largely statistical information. The Publishers' Weekly also has practically perfect listings, sometimes with a few descriptive words, but no real reviews to tell you what the books are. You may say that the great book-review papers do the job. Actually they don't. They report on only the "best" and "most important" — perhaps a hundred and fifty titles a month — a mere 15% or so of all the new books, not more. Admittedly these reviews are often fine critical essays and a pleasure to read; but unfortunately in picking and choosing those to be reviewed, fully 85% of the new books are totally ignored.

You have been missing over 8,500 of the new books every year!

Useful, interesting, entertaining — many valuable books are in the enormous and ever-changing pile which the reviewers discard. Perhaps the subject-matter is considered too specialized, the author unknown, the publisher obscure, the publicity too modest. These ignored books are of all types — fiction and non-fiction, books valuable or worthless, books vicious or ennobling, books for working, building, fighting, playing, and dreaming. The range is endless — from wooing to weaving, from poker to politics, from symphony to Saipan .... Your personal interest may include home repairs as well as murder mysteries, cooking and poetry as well as Wild West novels and photography, Russia and religion as well as flower gardening and atomic science. Many of these "lost" books may be far more interesting and valuable to you than those reviewed in full-page articles.

On the other hand you certainly don't want to fight your way through acres of print every month to keep in touch with the new books. Why not a magazine of brief reviews — thousands of them — authoritative and reliable — and classified by type or subject so that you can go directly to the books that interest you, skipping the rest if you wish?

And so we give you THE WORLD IN BOOKS. It is a monthly news report on the amazing variety of books which keep pouring from the presses all over the country. By holding most reviews down to thumbnail length we can cover a very large number of books — of all kinds and in all the special fields — and by careful grouping make them easy for you to run through. You'll get a better, quicker, and more accurate impression than you'd get if you could handle the books yourself. Then you can ask for what you want at your bookshop or library.

Our Board of Reviewers is spangled with men and women who are outstanding professional experts, scholars, and personalities in a wide variety of fields, along with the regular staff of competent reviewers. Each expert will tell you enough about the books in his special field so that you can make up your own mind which are worth reading. THE WORLD IN BOOKS is your key to the thousands of new books you have been missing.

Above all, we intend that our reports will be news reports — simple, factual, and readable. And in addition each issue will give you pleasant touches of humor .... interesting book-world gossip .... challenging prize contests of all sorts .... human interest stories on books, and on their authors and publishers .... contests and more contests .... diverting, quotable anecdotes — a rounded program of literary fare for intelligent people who like books. Make quite sure you get every issue!

Three years for $1.00 (50*c a year*) in the United States and Possessions; elsewhere in the world, 75*c a year, three years for* $2.00.

Dear Sirs,

I would be most grateful if you could let me have a copy of "Art in Cinema" for the British Film Academy Library.

The British Film Academy has only recently been formed and is the equivalent for Britain of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in the United States.

Owing to the exchange difficulty, I would be very happy to send you the equivalent value of the book in the form of any British publications you may specify which is still in print.

Yours faithfully,

Roger Manvell

Gentlemen:-

I have seen notices of your book ART IN CINEMA, by ACL, and feel that many members of the Photographic Society of America would be interested in it.

Would you please be kind enough to send me a copy of the book so that I can have a review prepared for publication in the Journal of the P.S.A.

Very cordially yours,

Dear Mr. Manvell:

Thank you for your letters and interest in our publication ART IN CINEMA. We shall be very happy to let you have the two copies you requested, one for the British Film Academy Library and one for review in the Penguin Film Review.

It's kind of you to offer to us two British publications of equal value, and we hasten to avail ourselves of this kindness: we'd like to have, very much, your book on the film published in the Penguin Series. The other book we have specifically in mind is a British publication on experimental cinema to which Lewis Jacobs tells us he has contributed a chapter. The book (whose title I do not know but perhaps you will) has either been published just recently or is forthcoming and is one we would be most interested to have. Should either of these books be unavailable, may we leave the choice to your discretion (though something on cinema, preferably) as the number of books on film in our library is very sketchy and we would be glad of anything to broaden it.

Mr. Stauffacher asks me to ask you if you know where he might get old copies of the periodical "Close-Up" from 1930 on, and also what the subscription fee to the Penguin Film Review is?

The books proceed to you via the mail.

With many thanks for your interest.

Sincerely,

Martha B. Bullitt
Secretary, Art in Cinema
